It was first presented on London's Science Museum before it began its world tour. It focuses in some of the most important contemporary issues, like worldwide reduction of natural resources, climate changes, and the need for citizenship activation for a sustainable future. While the visitors walk through the exhibition they take part into interactive games that aim to entice them into issues and problems that concern the creation of a sustainable future. The visitors are given digital 'survival card' where their decisions are inscribed.
