Introduction

Emblematic Mediterranean Mountains

Dear reader,

What you have in your hands is not only a tourist guide of Etna through the “genista” and vineyard way, but also the result of an ambitious project carried out by the Emblematic Mediterranean Mountains network. Mt Etna belongs to a group of Mediterranean mountain areas that work together in order to offer you a more intensive, authentic and sustainable travel experience. You can enjoy these experiences through 9 different Ecojourneys (see map above), which lead you to discover with all senses the hidden gems lying around some of the most amazing mountains across the Mediterranean basin.

Each Ecojourney offers you a route or a group of routes across the hinterland area of these mountains. Whilst enjoying this journey on foot, biking or riding, or using public transports, you have a chance to explore the areas’ singularities and to discover activities, creations and festivities offered by locals. All routes are perfectly integrated in landscapes that still preserve the footprints and the spirit of their ancient cultures and gorgeous nature.

But there's more: because we know how important aspects such as sustainability and responsible tourism are for you, we are committed to offer you an experience that...

- Is located in hinterland areas that are outside of the usual (and overcrowded) touristic routes;
- Has been conceived and developed mainly using and placing value on already existing infrastructure;
- Is a result of participatory processes with local stakeholders who are aware of environmental good practices related to water and energy consumption, waste management, fostering local and seasonal products, and obtaining ecolabels;
- Is conceived to favour interaction with local people and producers;
- Will allow you to live for a while the essence of a Mediterranean mountain area, its nature, its culture and its people and traditions. Go for it, it's waiting for you!

Introduction of the area

Etna through the Genista and Vineyard way

Vineyard

Path of Genista

"Walking through the middle lands of Etna means crossing the disputed territory between man and nature. The "Etna through the Genista and Vineyard way", proposed here, does not touch the summit areas, but allows you to discover areas that are however strongly marked by the volcano. In four days walking you will go from Nicolosi to Linguaglossa for a total distance of about 60 kilometers. In this guide we also propose to dedicate a fifth day to the visit of the Etna "wine valley": by bike along the Alcantara river from Randazzo to Castiglione di Sicilia."

The Path of Genista offers walkers or cyclists alike the opportunity to experience the Etna landscapes in all seasons, touching places of absolute naturalness, but also enjoying the comforts offered by welcoming stopping places and the warm vitality of the piedmont towns. Certainly in some areas you will notice the invasive human settlement that took place in the last century, but above all the intense relationship between inhabitants and mountain of fire will be evident: an infinite competition between nature that sometimes destroys and the always ready men farmers-artisans-hoteliers to start over, aware of however having to be respectful and tankful of the strength of Etna incessant activities.

The old farmers said that "Etna takes and gives!". They also said this with tears in their eyes when they saw the lava flow descend on the cultivated land. They repeated it like a mantra when the hot ashes ruined the crops, well knowing that in any case from those ever-active craters it comes the fertility of the soil and the extraordinary beauty of the landscape. The recurring question that the visitor has the need to ask about the dangerousness of the volcanic territory ("But aren't you afraid of living here?") will find, along the Etna through the Genista and Vineyard way, multiple exhaustive answers, because of the different characteristics of the territories we are going to discover.

The Etna territory

The area of holm oak and chestnut trees

The southern slope of Nicolosi is the most urbanized area of the itinerary, where it is evident the desire of the inhabitants to push their settlements towards the high altitudes without too many worries, in the awareness that Etna has in any case a very wide territory where the risk is distributed in space and time. Furthermore, the southern slope is the one where the role of the holm oak (Quercus ilex) dominates, the tree finds its ideal environment in the midlands around thousand meters and it has regained without delay all the agricultural funds that were abandoned in the mid-sixties of the twentieth century, when the vineyards seemed to enter into an irreversible crisis. But if the holm oak clearly demonstrates the ability of nature to return to the places from which it was driven out, the chestnut grove is instead a symbol of a forest welcomed by the woodsman man who planted it and who still takes care of it. The name itself of the town of Trecastagni recalls an ancient relationship with this generous tree, which offers sticks for the vineyards, supports for orchards, roof beams and which continues to give work to dozens of craftsmen, besides producing tasty autumn fruits.

The area of the Valle del Bove

The second day of walking is characterized above all by the impressive view of the Valle del Bove: the pierced side of the volcano, an enormous stratigraphic section of Etna that tells us stories of very ancient activities. An imposing presence from the landscape point of view with its steep walls (even more than a thousand meters high),

Chestnut tree

but able to offer comfort to the inhabitants of the volcano. Observing the lava flows that descend towards the wide depression about 7 kilometers wide is in fact a disturbing sight only for the visitor. The Etna man instead considers the rivers of fire within the Valley as a tranquilizing view at the bottom because he considers that area like a free zone reserved for volcanic activities. As long as the lava flows overlap with the previous ones, the outlet remains harmless for the activities and the houses, indeed the eruptive effervescence is popularly considered a healthy release of energy from the Earth. Without forgetting that the Valley represents a strongly iridescent scenic element: its appearance changes with the seasons, as the snow begins to settle, the white cloak covers it almost completely and then finally begins the slow retreat from the steep gullies.

The area of hazelnut trees

Around Sant'Alfio and Piedimonte Etneo area the central element of the landscape is the hazelnut tree, which gives the countryside a particular elegance. Its cultivation has had mixed fortunes and seems to have found particularly favorable conditions on the eastern side. During summer the hazel groves are the realm of a low and pleasant shade, while the lava stone houses - which sometimes testify to the pre-existence of the inevitable vineyards - are pampered by the branches of the trees. Here too there is no lack of castings and signs - even recent ones - of ethnic activities. But in general, men and women living in Etna area have always found good reasons to start over after each eruption. In the "Ripe della Naca" area there are many altars bearing the date of 1928, they remind the year of the terrible eruption that destroyed the entire town of Mascali, but gave those who escaped the fury of nature the right energy (essentially feeling themselves as miraculous) to face new sowing and uncertain vintages.

The area of the pine forest and forest domain

The last days of trekking are mainly characterized by natural environments. Thanks above all to the activity of the Sicilian foresters who, in the last few decades, have reforested, cared for and looked after ever larger areas. As the traditional activities have been downsized the state forest has expanded. Inside were built dirt tracks, shelters and bivouacs. The Sicilian Region has given work through the tool of the forestation and has at the same time given back to nature large portions of Etna. The final descent towards Linguaglossa and Castiglione mostly takes place in the woods, but this time in the shadow of the Ragabo pine forest. A secular forest that tells a story that is still different: that of the communities that used it intensively, that from the pines extracted the resin and obtained trunks for sailing ships. Until the "boom" of skiing and mountain hikes led to the transformation of the ancient "towing" - used to bring the logs downstream - into automotive access routes to fun on the snow.

Hazelnut tree

Let's go now to discover the "Path of the genista" that proceed for about 60 kilometers, normally walkable in four days, with the possibility every evening to find comfortable places to stop and have a good room, enjoying taste of Sicilian cuisine. There is also the possibility for those who wish to stay in tents inside private areas equipped for this purpose. Travel times are obviously shown net of stops.

1 Nicolosi, Etna Park, Monte Arso (Pedara), Casa Capinera (Trecastagni), Zafferana Etnea

Route:	Medium difficulty	Duration:	5 hours
Map Symbol:		Height:	980 m
		Length:	16,5 km

From the inhabited center of Nicolosi you reach the headquarters of the Etna Park, worthy of a visit as it was built inside a monastery dating back to the 12th century. Do not miss the short path of germplasm that winds around the monumental building. The trek continues on secondary asphalted roads and then on cart tracks up to Monte Arso: an imposing extinct volcanic cone that dominates the entire southern slope. The vegetation of this zone consists essentially of tenacious evergreen oaks and genista. Continue through partially built-up areas until you reach the rural village of Tarderìa, a district of Pedara. It goes up again for about ten minutes, but coming back immediately to go down through a small valley that soon turns into a comfortable dirt road in the middle of high poplars. Going over You will use a communal road that winds through a chestnut grove for about a kilometer and a half, until the vision suddenly opens up on Monte Ilice (a crater dating back to the year 1000) and on a large stretch of the Ionian coast, from Syracuse to Acireale. Here is the Casa Capinera, a point of information and reception of the Etna Park. The structure takes its name from the first successful novel by the writer Giovanni Verga, who set a part of the story in these areas, describing the site of Monte Ilice as a place of beauty, particularly loved by the young protagonist of the story.

Monte Illice

The last part of the stage is dedicated to the descent to the inhabited center of Zafferana Etnea, through small roads and paths in the areas where the forest has regained the ancient cultivations.

The descent takes place on the steep ridge from which the vineyards were accessed until the mid-twentieth century. We pass by the water supply well in the district of Cavotta, we tackle a difficult uphill stretch and then descend through a typical “paved” road to the village of Sarro. For the last part of the route we follow the provincial road with extreme caution up to the center of Zafferana Etnea, where there are various possibilities for overnight stays.

2 Zafferana Etnea, Ilice di Carrinu (Milo), Case Pietracannone, Magazzeni (Municipality of Sant'Alfio)

Route:	Medium difficulty	Duration:	4,5 hours
Map Symbol:		Height:	1200 m
		Length:	13 km

Leave the town of Zafferana starting from the town public garden and following the paved road that climbs markedly northwards (via della Montagna). A little further on, a signboard indicates on the left the direction to reach Val Calanna and the 1991 eruptive theater, the itinerary continues instead to the right entering the upper part of the fraction of Ballo. From here you go up again on a paved road reaching Contrada Dagalone where an ancient mule track begins, offering the tangible testimony of the activities that once characterized the medium slopes of the volcano, when the lands were tilled with enormous effort to obtain vineyards beyond the thousand meters of altitude. The mule track is used for a long stretch until it meets the signposted detour for the imposing Carrinu Ilice. A 10-minute walk is enough to admire one of the most fascinating natural monuments of Etna: an old holm oak, over 700 years old, with a vigorous foliage overlooking a now ruined house. A tree that impresses with its grandeur and that surprises even more if you think that its first rooting on the harsh volcanic soil occurred when the Swabians still reigned in Sicily!

Continuing to walk in the midst of nature you pass by the pleasant town of Piano Bello (inside the forest domain, where there is a traditional "pagghiaro" house built of branches that can offer a temporary shelter in case of bad weather) and you go along the Valle del Bove. The 1950-51 flow (which closely threatened the town of Milo) is traversed on a recent forest path, enjoying magnificent views of the looming south-east terminal crater. To reach Monte Fontana is used a comfortable in the midst of the Etna genista, which in this area have an arboreal bearing and which are covered with fragrant blooms during the summer. A centuries-old chestnut tree welcomes hikers now near Monte Fontana, where there is a wide dirt road. With a comfortable route on the 1979 lava flow (which in a single night escapes from the Valle del Bove and appeared at the gates of Fornazzo village) we reach the farmhouse of Pietracannone, destined to be the base point of the Etna Park, but currently being restructured. Beyond the block, go back on asphalt for about a kilometer, going down the provincial road to Etna Nord. At the height of an altar placed immediately after a hairpin bend you return to a quiet little street, this time amidst the typical hazel groves of this side. Continuing down, you come across the ancient straight road called "Finaita", which once formed the border of a fiefdom. Follow it until you reach the different structures that offer hospitality in the Magazzeni area (municipality of Sant'Alfio) at the end of the stage.

3 Magazzeni, Bocche del 1928, Bosco della Cerrita, Rifugio Monte Crisimo, Pineta Ragabo (Linguaglossa)

Route:	Medium difficulty	Duration:	4,5 hours
Map Symbol:		Height:	1420 m
		Length:	13 km

The first part of the day is dedicated to the area of the 1928 craters, reminding the impetuous eruption that caused the destruction of the ancient town of Mascali, but spared the town of Sant'Alfio. In 1958, the faithful of the area built the small church from which the third stage of the trek began. Even alongside the rural buildings there are small votive altars that recall the faith of those who saw their lands spared by the fury of the volcano.

After about an hour's walk you come across the eruptive fissure, which can be visited if fitted with a pocket lamp. Following the tiny cones lined up one after the other, one notices in fact the last "hornito" which is accessible from below by a narrow opening: entering it with extreme care everyone discovers the inside view of the channel in which the river of lava flowed. Descend the flow for a short distance using a comfortable dirt road until you reach a well-kept farm. At this point we go back uphill entering the forest domain, in an area marked above all by a wide oaks forest. The first stretch in the oak wood is rather steep, so you come across an obvious fork in the road where you turn left and continue on the comfortable forest track inside the dense forest. The itinerary goes down again, crossing a portion of the territory of Piedimonte Etneo up to meet a signal that invites you to turn left to reach the forest buildings of Mount Crisimo, one of which is usually left open so as to allow emergency shelter of hikers. The tank is also accessible, but contains not-drinkable water. The place is still very panoramic and worth a stop. A further uphill stretch allows you to reach the Monte Crisimo saddle. Here the route becomes almost flat for a couple of kilometers. We cross one of the last offshoots of the violent bilateral eruption of 27 th October 2002, which destroyed almost all the tourist facilities of Piano Provenzana in a few hours and caused serious damage even on the opposite side of the volcano with a contemporary lava flow. It is pleasant to note how the sides of the flow are already sprinkled with young pine seedlings ready to continue the eternal cycle of life that continues after death. To reach the stopping places we use the wide forest road (still paved) that was once used to bring down the mighty trunks of the Ragabo pine forest. Once you reach Piano Pernicana, go up the easy way to the area where you can stay overnight and have dinner.

The Cerrita wood

4 From the Pineta Ragabo to Linguaglossa or Castiglione di Sicilia

Route:	Medium difficulty	Height:	980 m
Map Symbol:		Length:	19 km up to Castiglione di S.
Duration:	5,5 / 6,5 hours		17 km up to Linguaglossa

From the 1400 meters of altitude of the Pineta Ragabo it is time to go down to the valley. A day mostly on dirt roads that at first touch Monte Corruccio (see the cave of the same name, an ancient effusive mouth) and then cross a large area once cultivated with vineyards and now fully re-conquered by natural vegetation. It is impressive to see small service structures at the vineyards (so called "palmenti" above all) that reach well over a thousand meters of altitude, where the environmental conditions were certainly hostile for the farmers of the nineteenth century and where today the forest dominates unchallenged. In a few short stretches you also cross a wide "trazzera" of transhumance that the shepherds used once to move the flocks in seasonal transfers. It also crosses a private land where hikers' welcome structures have been built and it continues on a comfortable little road. After the Previtera houses, turn left and begin to descend in a more decisive manner. Once arrived at the bottom, go along for a hundred meters on the so-called "street of a thousand height" and enter the lava field of 1923, the eruption that covered a large cultivated area. You walk in the open air until you see the little station of the Circumetnea Railway (that of Cerro) at a short distance, still used as an optional stop for the narrow-gauge train. At this point you can turn right and continue for about a hundred meters on the main road 120 until you reach a small road on the left that allows you to go down directly to the tiny village of Catena, a district of Linguaglossa town. From here continue for a short while on the main road until you reach on the left the Via Terramiceli, from which you can easily reach one of the ancient inter-farm roads that allowed a quick connection with the main village of Linguaglossa. At this point meet for the first time since the start of the trek some floodwaters, connected to volcanic activity. A final descent through small cultivated farms and finally one of the ending goals of our journey: Linguaglossa with its historic center, its mountain traditions and a remarkable culture and practice of good food.

If, on the other hand, you have reached the Cerro station, turn left and our destination becomes Castiglione di Sicilia. The final trait in this case is even more fascinating. You cross an area characterized by large hazel groves, but also by some stagnation of water in winter as revealed by the unmistakable toponym of "Pantano" (muddy area). We then walk on the extension of the Circumetnea railway built after the 1923 eruption, when the authorities of the time preferred to realize a complex and expensive deviation from the areas covered by the new lavas so to serve the built-up area of Castiglione too. The stretch of old railway that is covered today is very pleasant, although paved, as it is largely shaded and with beautiful views of the fortress that dominates the built-up area of Castiglione, which was also a Greek settlement due to its strategic position. Arriving almost at the provincial road, in front of the cemetery, you enter a short tunnel and head straight for the old station. Here the last signpost of the "Etna through the Genista and Vineyard way" warns that the destination is now close and it is time to finally descend to admire one of the best preserved Etna historical centers.

5 From Linguaglossa to Randazzo and Castiglione di Sicilia by bike in the Valley of Wines

Route:	Medium difficulty	Length:	23 / 55 km
Map Symbol:

The valley of Etna wines has found a new splendor in the last twenty years. The lands that until the mid-twentieth century were the large supply area for the Riposto wine industry and at one point had known abandonment, were restored to their ancient vocation and others were planted with vines. All the most important Sicilian wineries came to produce in the area between Randazzo, Linguaglossa and Castiglione, joining other Italian and foreign entrepreneurs who already at the end of the last century understood that Etna could produce quality wines. Since then the vineyards have changed the landscape for the better, bringing beauty and development, while the international quality wine market now recognizes the Etna wine valley as an area of excellence.

Our proposal is to travel by bike, using the secondary road network and the now abandoned railway tracks. A cycle tour that goes well at the end of the “Genista’s way”, but also as an autonomous proposal to enjoy the elegance of the landscape riding an ecological and healthy vehicle like the bike, with or without assisted pedaling.

Here is our suggestion: from Linguaglossa you can reach

Vineyard with Etna in the background

Randazzo using the Circumetnea railway that passes along the Etna vines with the possibility of making stops along the way for visiting the cellars and vineyards. From Randazzo, take the state road 120 for a short distance and then take the low-traffic provincial road 89 which runs alongside magnificent wine estates. After about ten kilometers from the constantly descending starting point, turn left to reach the river that drains the waters of the Nebrodi and part of the Etna and reach Moio Alcantara, famous for its peach orchards. At this point we go back briefly and turn left using the so-called "wine route", but after a few hundred meters you'll find the signs for the Alcantara river at the "Stone Path". Continuing straight on, instead, there are beautiful rural dwellings and traces of artefacts linked to the old Taormina-Randazzo railway (closed in 2002). After 4 kilometers, in the middle of the hazelnut groves, it meets the abandoned station of Castiglione di Sicilia and it continues thanks to pleasant little roads (mostly paved and surrounded by greenery) up to the Cuba of Santa Domenica, a medieval Latin cross church that would have been built around the eleventh century. Continue to the left of the ancient place of worship following a small road that leads to a wider one where you turn to the right. Continue until you reach the wine trail from which you reach a fresh fountain first and then steeply up the built-up area of Castiglione di Sicilia. This one-way stretch is about 23 kilometers mostly downhill. To return from the via Carmine di Castiglione, go up towards the Circumetnea station which, for some years after 1923, reached this area of the Alcantara Valley with its trains. Once on the Costa road we will head north, taking advantage of the moderate slope of the former railway line (in the opposite direction from the last stage of the "Genista's path") in the direction of Rovittello village. Before arriving in the village, turn right to descend towards some valuable wine-growing areas. This time we will entirely use the provincial road 89 for the return to Randazzo, passing by the Pietramarina and Verzella districts to finally return to the section already traveled in the morning from Moio to the starting point. Along the provincial roads, although they are usually poorly trafficked, caution and great attention are recommended. The return journey is approximately 32 kilometers.

Cuba of Santa Domenica - Castiglione di Sicilia

The historic village of Castiglione di Sicilia

Church of San Nicolò - Randazzo

Extra virgin olive oil

Extra virgin olive oil

On the slopes of Etna Mount there is a type of olive oil cultivation that has no equal in all part of Sicily. Generally characterized by small plots that go even beyond 800 meters a.s.l. where there are two cultivars with distinct characteristics: the “Nocellara Etnea” and the “Brandofino”. From these two cultivars used alone or in blend, with other minor cultivars, oils with unique and well characterized characteristics are obtained with high aromatic and phenolic contents that contribute to providing these products with qualities widely recognized and appreciated by the most demanding consumers.

The production of PDO olive oil must follow a very precise specification. PDO brand products, including extra virgin olive oil, are protected against counterfeits throughout Europe. In the territories of the Etna Park and the Alcantara River Park takes origins two important oils with a controlled and guaranteed designation of origin by the European Community: the Valdemone PDO and the Mount Etna PDO.

Wine production

Red grape for must

Etna wine production, of particular value, is strongly influenced by volcanic soil and the presence of the sea; the same cultivation soils are also divided into “microzone”, each suitable for a specific type of vine, based on altitude and exposure. For its quality, the Etna wine - in the types red, rosé, white, superior white and sparkling wine (the latter born in 2011) - was the first, among the Sicilians ones, to obtain in 1968 the prestigious recognition of the Cdo brand. The representative varieties are “Nerello Mascalese” and “Nerello cappuccino” for red grapes and “Carricante” and “Catarratto” for white grapes.

The Gold of Etna

Etna honey

Among the many products whose production is favored by the lava earth, the honey, also called "Oro dell'Etna", is one of the best known and appreciated. Its production was born in 1920 in Zafferana Etnea, where the first "Iapari" (Sicilian beekeepers) were born. Today the municipality reaches the production of 15% of the entire national product with over 700 beekeepers.

In the Etna area are produced different varieties of honey with different colors and tastes, among which the best known are: Millefiori, Eucalyptus (or Chestnut), orange and lemon Zagare, Carrubbo, Citrus fruits (like bergamot), Mandarin, Cedar and grapefruit.

From the work of bees comes the Royal Jelly too, used mainly as a tonic, and the Propolis, a natural antibacterial often used to treat colds and to strengthen the immune system.

In 2002 Zafferana Etnea, together with ten other Italian municipalities, set up the national association "Le città del miele" (Towns of honey circuit) which aims to unite the largest honey producers in Italy.

Desserts and Gastronomy

The Sicilian Cassata

The quality of the carefully selected raw materials, combined with the skill and passion of expert master pastry chefs give life to products of excellent goodness, laden with the emphatic Sicilian confectionery tradition. Our master cooks and pastry chefs have known how to exploit their innate passion for desserts by researching old traditional Sicilian recipes and offering everyone a result of innumerable specialties. So many goodness tickle the tastes of tourists and vacationers who, after having tasted them, become ambassadors of the Sicilian pastry all over the world. It's impossible to resist the call of the infinite delicacies: the "Sicilian", the most famous fried pizza of Sicily with tuma and anchovy filling, a specialty born in the 40s, the "arancini" (rice ball) filled with ragù, pistachio, spinach. The biscuits and traditional desserts are endless: hazelnut pastries, almond pastries, tea leaves, the so called "ski biscuits", sheep's milk ricotta pastry and martorana fruit.

What to do

The 9 eco-route municipalities

Linguaglossa Etna north

Nicolosi, Pedara, Trecastagni, Zafferana Etnea, Milo, Sant'Alfio, Linguaglossa, Randazzo, Castiglione di Sicilia.

"The Territory of the eco-itinerary involves the municipalities belonging to the Etna area and the Alcantara Valley. A unique territory, a natural landscape alive, that changes according to the altitude, an experience that does not leave indifferent, from "living in the open to learn about the true nature of Sicily."

Nicolosi

Nicolosi, on the slopes of Etna, was built around the twelfth century by the inhabitants of the areas surrounding the monastery of San Nicolò La Rena. Rebuilt several times (for example, after the terrible eruption of 1669, which gave rise to the Red Mountains, reaching Catania and the sea, or those of 1776 and 1886), the city has always risen, offering visitors stunning natural beauty and modern services, becoming a source of pride in the Etna area, deserving the title of "Gate of Etna".

Nicolosi, with its ski slopes for winter sports and a cable-way, with which you can get to the mouth of the volcanic crater, accompanied by licensed guides, is an almost obligatory stop for visiting Mount Etna.

Pedara

Pedara, with a territory that extends for 19,20 square kilometers and ranges from 600 to 1600 m. a.s.l., offers the beauty of its landscapes and the healthiness of its climate, with an interesting cultural and naturalistic route, starting from the center and its special seating in lava stone, that reach easily to the most scenic spots. Here, the urbanization clears and offers wonderful views to 360 degrees: a succession of fantastic frames between the sea, the hills and the mountains, with its fragrant chestnut, juniper and cyclamen.

In the town there is the volcanic cone of Mount Troina, a green lung in the past almost entirely covered with vineyards, despite the particularly topographical difficulties would make it grow.

WHAT TO SEE - the Church of St. Antonio Abate, the Church of the Annunciation, the Church of Santa Maria delle Grazie, the church Santa Maria della Stella, the Church of San Vito, the church of San Biagio, the Basilica of S. Trecastagni

The origin of Trecastagni (567 m a.s.l.) dates back to the pre-archaic, although the first historical evidence, found in the area surrounding the fort "Windmill" and the crater lake of Monte Urna, date back to the Roman times.

The village, on the slopes of Etna, has repeatedly suffered devastating consequences of the volcano: the earthquake of 1408, the eruptions of 1541 and 1542, as well as the shocking earthquake of 1693, which destroyed even the city of Catania.

Over the years it has changed its nature of land devoted to agriculture, in tourism-oriented country, mostly residential, thanks to its climate and its geographic position, just a few kilometers from the Etna volcano and the sea.

WHAT TO SEE - the Teatro Comunale, the Church of St. Nicholas of Bari, the Church of Sant'Antonio Abate with attached catacombs, the Church of St. Anthony of Padua, the Church of Mercy, known as "the Black", the Church of Our Lady of Help, the Church of Our Lady of the Three mountains, the Sanctuary of Saint Alfio with the museum of votive paintings.

Zafferana Etnea

Zafferana Etnea

The history of Zafferana (600 m a.s.l.), known as “the Pearl of the Etna”, at the slopes of Etna Volcano, began in the early decades of the 600, with the first houses and the agricultural economy.

In 1792, an eruption of Etna covers the fertile land, destroying forests, orchards and pastures.

The incident raises concerns over the inhabitants who, with faith, ask God, through the intercession of the Virgin Mary, the miracle to block the frightening wave of lava, carrying in procession the statue of Our Lady of Providence. By which time the inhabitants, resigned, are going to leave their homes, casting hangs a short distance of the village. In memory of the event, it was erected an altar and a plaque was placed.

Milo

The town of Milo, being at 750 m. a.s.l., is pleasantly cool in summer and a dwelling place caressed by snow in winter. Its location allows you to enjoy a panoramic view that stretches from Catania to Taormina and, on clear days, to push the eye up to Calabria.

Milo is one of the highest inhabited Etna town, this means that its vineyards, woods, old farm houses have been “visited” several times in the past, by the owner: the volcano Etna in its most warm and enveloping dress, the lava. It was the summer residence of Giovanni d’Aragona, who used to spend part of the summer in this place and loved it so much to build, in 1340, a small church, that today became the mother church of the country. Milo, with its precious grapes and the home of famous singers, is also known as the “city of wine and music”.

WHAT TO SEE - The path leading to Monti Sartoriu, originated by lava flow in 1865; The viewpoint of Monte Fontana overlooking the Valle del Bove; The Etna Park Visitor Center in Fornazzo; the woods of Caselle, with the centuries-old holm of Ilice Carrinu, whose age is estimated at about 700 years.

Sant'Alfio

Sant'Alfio (550 m a.s.l.), an ancient town in the beautiful scenery of the Etna Park, on the slopes of Etna, is unique for its panoramic position, which preserves the original appearance, marked by narrow streets on which rise buildings from 1600, and it is famous for the production of wine and for the "Castagno dei cento cavalla (one hundred horses chestnut), ancient specimen of the plant world with an estimated age of 2000 years, recognized by Unesco as "Monument messenger of peace": the legend says that Queen Joanna I of Aragon with his retinue of 100 horses and 100 riders during a thunderstorm recovered under his foliage. It was also a source of inspiration for the painter Jean Houel, whose painting, today, is at the Museum of St. Petersburg.

WHAT TO SEE - the Mother Church, dedicated to the Patron Saints Alfio, Cirino and Philadelphus; the Calvary Church; the church dedicated to Our Lady of Tindari in Nucifori; the Church Magazzeni; the Museum of the Vine and Wine.

Linguaglossa

Linguaglossa, on the foothills of Etna, (550 m a.s.l.), offers its typicality of mountain town with Etna lava stone streets and doorways, the manors on the main streets and flat houses in the adjacent streets, while the alleys recreate an ancient atmosphere, linked to the processing and transportation of the gigantic Etna pines which was extracted resin from, essential for the Sicilian fishing fleet. Here you can enjoy the products of this land with various but strong flavours: hazelnut, wine, ricotta cheese, cheese, honey and homemade sausage to the strain, wisely worked, while restaurants offer local dishes enriched by delicious mushrooms from Etna and wild vegetables.

Linguaglossa is also the direct access to the Etna Park and to the hikes to the summit craters and, in winter, also to the skiing and ski slopes.

WHAT TO SEE - the frescoes in the Church of the patron S. Egidio, the Capuchin Monastery with the eighteenth-century wooden case, the majestic Mother Church, the Church of St. Francis of Paola, which houses the statue of the Madonna of Loreto, the Ethno-anthropological Museum of the people, Piano Provenzano (craters of 2002), Mount Conca.

Randazzo

Randazzo

Randazzo is located at the crossroads of three major provinces (Catania, Messina, Enna), strategically connected to the centre of what was once the Val Demone.

Rare, if not unique, example, Randazzo provides its territory to the Regional Park of Etna, the Nebrodi and the Alcantara River; three protected areas that give it the power to be able to expand in environmental content and still intact nature.

Uncertain are the origins of Randazzo, certain is that he came under the influence of different cultures: there is still the Greek district, the Latin Quarter and the district of Lombardy, which are the current center, while impressive monuments make cognizance of the splendor that the city had in the Middle Ages.

WHAT TO SEE - the Middle Age walls; Castle-Prison; the Church of St. Mary; via Arches; the church of St. Nicholas; the church of San Martino; the Museum of Natural Sciences; the Archaeological Museum; "The Statue of St. Nicholas" by Antonello Gagini.

Castiglione di Sicilia

Castiglione di Sicilia, one of the largest municipalities in the province of Catania, has many architectural excellences and landscapes, especially in the village overlooking the valley.

The city is part of "Club dei Borghi più belli d'Italia" ("Club of the Most Beautiful Villages in Italy") and of the Association Aceb "Città Eredi di Bisanzio" that put together Italian villages with Byzantine sites and some Russian cities.

One of the oldest traditions is the art of embroidery and English point. Very important is the viticulture with excellent wines exported all over the world. Among other productions there are extra virgin olive oil and sweets made with local hazelnuts.

WHAT TO SEE - the Castle of Lauria, the Basilica of the Virgin Mary, the Church of Sant'Antonio, the Church of Peter and Paul Saints, the Castelluccio and the "Cannizzo", church of San Vincenzo, the Church of Santa Domenica, better known as "Byzantine Cuba", national monument since the early 1900s.

"Excursions, in-depth studies and laboratory activities. Integrated itineraries that allow you to discover the cultural richness and the extraordinary biodiversity of the Etna area."

Viagrande Butterfly House is a magical world where hundreds of butterflies, among the most beautiful and colorful, fly undisturbed inside a large tropical greenhouse. The Butterfly House is recognized by the Ministry of the Environment and has now become a "must" destination for tourists coming to Etna. Nearby, a little educational farm has recently been set up with geese, chickens, goats and a donkey. The new laboratory called "From seed to fruit" was designed to make children aware of the cycle of nature, by letting each of them plant a seedling to bring home and take care of.

This interesting documentary about the main historical periods was created in collaboration with the Ministry of Cultural Heritage and made even more fascinating thanks to the innovative system of interaction with the public. (www.teatrodeimiti.it)

Last, "La Grotta di Polifemo", a fascinating and entertaining nature trail retracing the famous episode of the Odyssey. The route includes the labyrinth, sundials and many other curiosities related to mythology and the ancient legends of Etna.

The Etna Wine Route promotes a discovery journey of the Etna territory, transporting tourists to a "Volcano" of smells, flavors and unique and overwhelming beauties.

The Etna Wine Route Association embraces wineries, farms, accommodation facilities and restaurants, giving the traveler unforgettable experiences, with wide scenarios ranging from the fresh mountain air to the sea breeze. It does this through the "Etna Wine Train" Tour too, which is a unique way in the world to travel the slopes of Etna, aboard the Circumetnea Railway's narrow gauge railroad. With the Wine Bus, travelers will be taken along the routes of the Etna Wine Route to discover the most beautiful wine cellars in the area and taste their wines. A guide on the train will illustrate the places and cellars in Italian and English. The return, slowly descending, with the sea on the horizon, will find travelers in love

The Civic Museum of Natural Sciences in Randazzo exhibits the ornithological collection Priolo, begun in 1939 by Angelo Priolo and built over thirty years. Originally dedicated to only Italian avifauna, over time the collection has expanded to exotic birds and is currently composed of about 2000 pieces. The collection, particularly important for the study of the avifauna of Sicily, includes about 400 different species and also includes extinct birds, such as the francolin and the little hen. The geological collection is

The Randazzo Puppet Theater Museum today houses a rich collection of antique puppets: 39 specimens of high historical and artistic value, built between the 1800s and the 1900s by historical puppet masters of the Catania school and dressed in precious fabrics and chiseled metal armor. This museum exhibits puppets that, as tradition wants, were used to stage variations of the “chansons de geste” of the era of Charlemagne and his paladins. The characters are the most famous ones who have always been passionate about large and small, including Orlando and Rinaldo. (tel. +39 095 799 1611)

The “Paolo Vagliasindi” archaeological museum in Randazzo is housed in the “former prison” Castle, and includes the collection of Baron Paolo Vagliasindi, one of the most important archaeological testimonies of the Etna area, which includes Corinthian, Ionic and Attic pottery. The famous vase called “Oinochoe Vagliasindi, dated at the end of the 5th century BC, where is represented the infrequent myth of the Harpies punishing the blind king Fineo rescued by the Boreadi. Saints Peter and Paul Museum (inside the Church of Sant'Antonio Abate). In the heart of the Alcantara valley, in Castiglione di Sicilia, a precious eighteenth-century façade preserves a garden of inlaid marbles of a thousand colors. It is a place where the heart beats, influenced by the arts of the Messina school, the result of the artistic patronage of the most refined eighteenth-century aristocracy of Sicily. The high altar of 1708 with its marble inlays, in polychrome mosaic, form a typically Baroque balanced composition in its plastic and dynamic conception. The Church - Museum, still consecrated, is dedicated to the cult of Sant'Antonio Abate and houses the statue of the Holy Saint made by Nicolò Bagnasco from Palermo between 1814 and 1815.

Among the works of art we hear the echo of the history of powerful Castilian noble families who competed to make the richest and most decorated temple. They create a Museum itinerary, a "Petrified Garden", within a Baroque architectural jewel, the Church of Sant'Antonio Abate. (Tel. +39 0942 984058 +39 348 9176432)

In the Santoro Country House in Castiglione di Sicilia you have the opportunity to take courses to learn how to cook and prepare local cuisine specialties. Lessons will be held in the show cooking room. They will be held not by qualified chefs only but also by local women who will show the traditional recipes of Sicilian cuisine. The courses will be held for groups starting from two people each day. Participants will eventually be able to taste the dishes they have prepared during the lesson.

The Sicilian cart

The cheese maker in the living nativity scene

The Etna territory is a land rich in traditions, the result of a fruitful intertwining of civilizations, cultures and different dominations, a diadem of music, songs, sounds and colors.

Here the folklore shows itself in the most varied ways: from festivals in traditional costumes to ballet in the square, from religious celebrations to village festivals. If great devotion and charm express the many and different celebrations of the “Patron Saint”, no less attention is given to the other “primary” festivals, which take place extensively throughout the entire territory of the valley. Christmas is underlined by the many living nativity scenes,

Being a responsible traveler and minimizing the impact your visit creates is important for the sustainability of the area. After all, sustainable tourism is a way of traveling and exploring a destination whilst respecting its culture, environment and people.

General Rules

Respect nature (flora, fauna and land) and don't introduce alien species of flora and fauna.

Stay on the paths and trails waymarked and camp only in those authorized places.

Light fires only in the authorized areas.

Do not drop any of your litter, bring it back.

Keep pets always on a leash and under the control of the owner.

Circulate and park motorised vehicles only in authorised road/areas.

Travelling responsibly in times of climate change? Yes, you can! Just offset your CO2 emissions...

- Reaching our mountain areas from other parts of Europe or the world would be not possible without air travel. However, aviation is one of the largest emitter of greenhouse gases and, therefore, contributes to the anthropogenic climate change in a decisive manner.
- Fortunately, you can offset the generated carbon footprint on a voluntary basis in one of the existing carbon offsetting initiatives. These initiatives usually offer a web tool with a calculator so that everyone can calculate the price of their own carbon offsets. By purchasing the emitted CO₂, you can mitigate your own greenhouse gas emissions from transportation (e.g. your flight), but also from using non-renewable energy sources during your stay.
- The purchased offsets are usually dedicated to on- or off-site forest management projects, but also to conservation of biodiversity in collaboration with local managers. You can contribute to these projects with small amounts. For instance, the offsets from a flight from Berlin to Thessaloniki (round trip) cost less than 20 Euro, and from Stockholm to Catania, about 30 Euro.
- You can offset your emissions wherever you like. We suggest using "Atmosfair", being one of the most well-known and reliable platform. Just have a look at www.atmosfair.de!
- Thank you for making responsible and sustainable travel possible!

Castiglione di Sicilia

How to reach Nicolosi or Castiglione di Sicilia

There are various ways to get from Catania to Nicolosi: by bus, taxi or car. By bus with the AST line (1h 15min), by taxi or by car (20 min).

To reach Castiglione di Sicilia it is possible from Catania to take the train to Fiumefreddo di Sicilia and continue by taxi to Castiglione di Sicilia (1h 2min), or by bus stopping at Piedimonte Etneo (2h 15min) and finally by taxi (48 min). It is also possible to use the Circumetnea with the Catania-Randazzo and Giarre-Riposto routes towards Randazzo, or to reach Naxos from Messina or Catania and continue with the bus.

Highway to Nicolosi: Highway A18 ME-CT, exit at Giarre and continue on the 4-II provincial road to Nicolosi. From Palermo instead take the A19 until the Motta Sant'Anastasia-Misterbianco exit, then take the provincial road 13 and continue until Belpasso and from here to Nicolosi through the 4-II provincial road.

Highways to Castiglione di Sicilia: from Catania airport, Catania ring road, A18 CT-ME motorway, Fiumefreddo di Sicilia exit or the next one to Giardini Naxos.
