

SEAS 2 Grow Silver Economy Stakeholder Needs Report

Annex: Elderly people and their informal carers survey results – plots and tables

Table E1. Living arrangements of elderly respondents.

UK	Living alone	Not living alone
Receiving formal care only	n/a	100%
Receiving informal care only	100%	0%
Receiving both informal and formal care	n/a	n/a

Belgium	Living alone	Not living alone
Receiving formal care only	50%	50%
Receiving informal care only	100%	0%
Receiving both informal and formal care	100%	0%

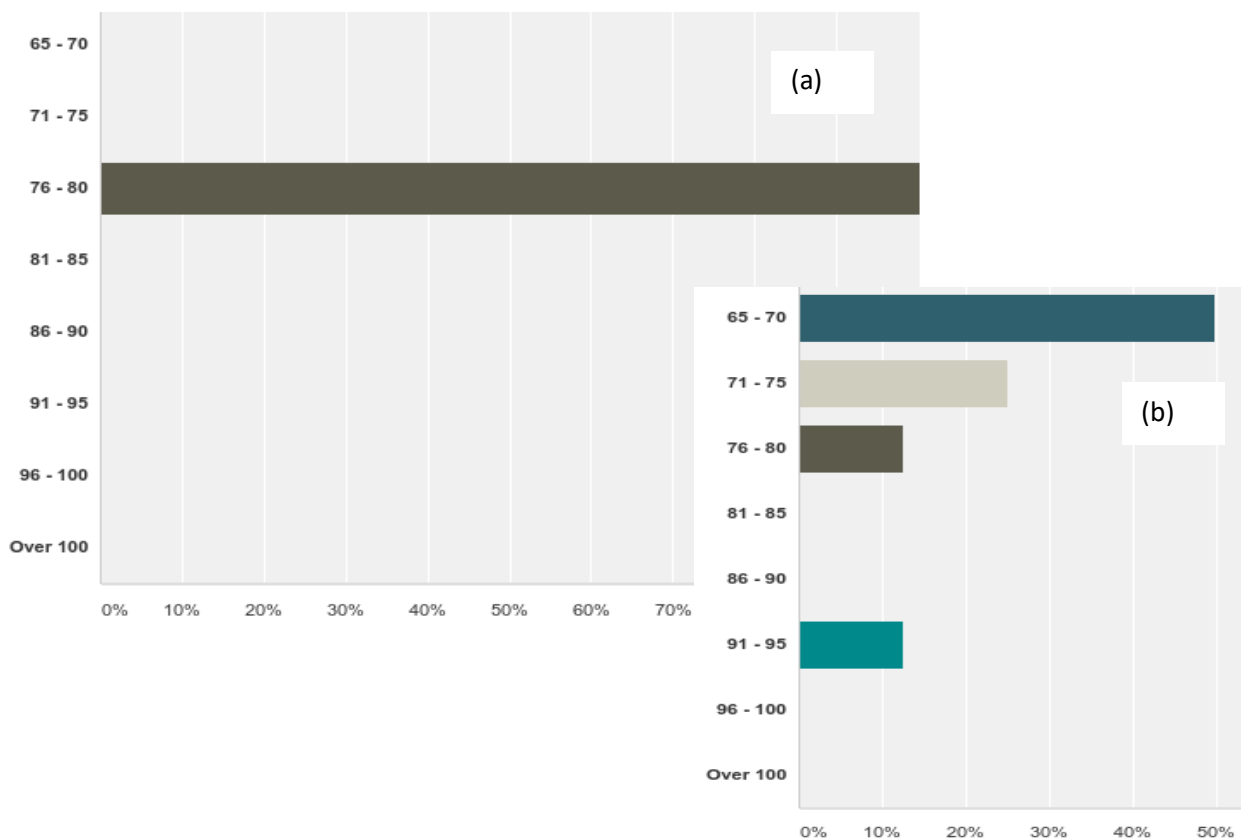

Figure E1. Age demography of elderly respondents in UK (a) and Belgium (b).

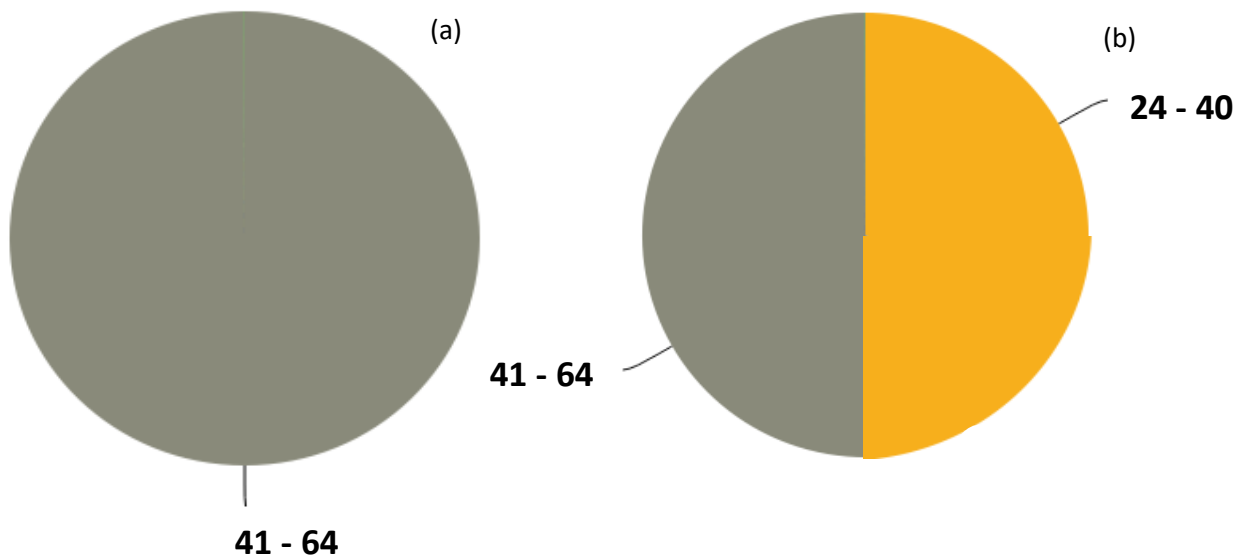

Figure E2. Age of informal carer respondents in UK (a) and Belgium (b).

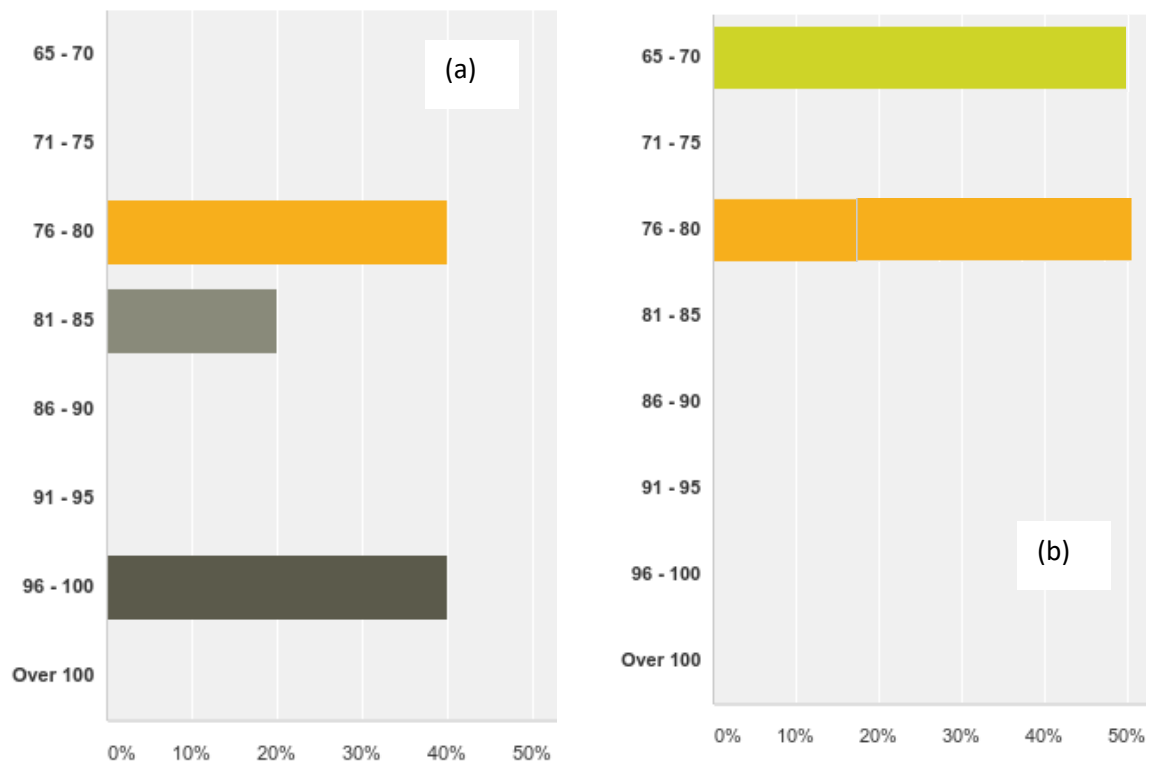

Figure E3. Age of elderly people cared for by informal carer respondents in UK (a) and Belgium (b).

	Elderly people	Informal carers
Part of Silver Economy	100%	57%

Table E2. Percentage of elderly (a) and informal carer (b) respondents who feel they belong to the Silver Economy.

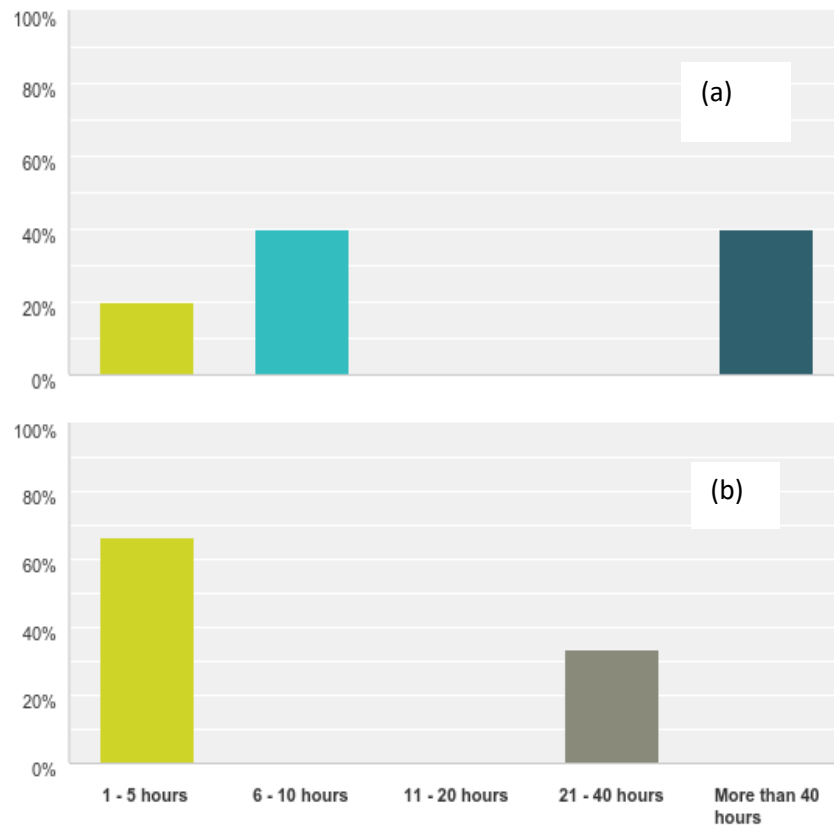

Figure E4. Number of hours of informal care received by elderly people in UK (a) and Belgium (b).

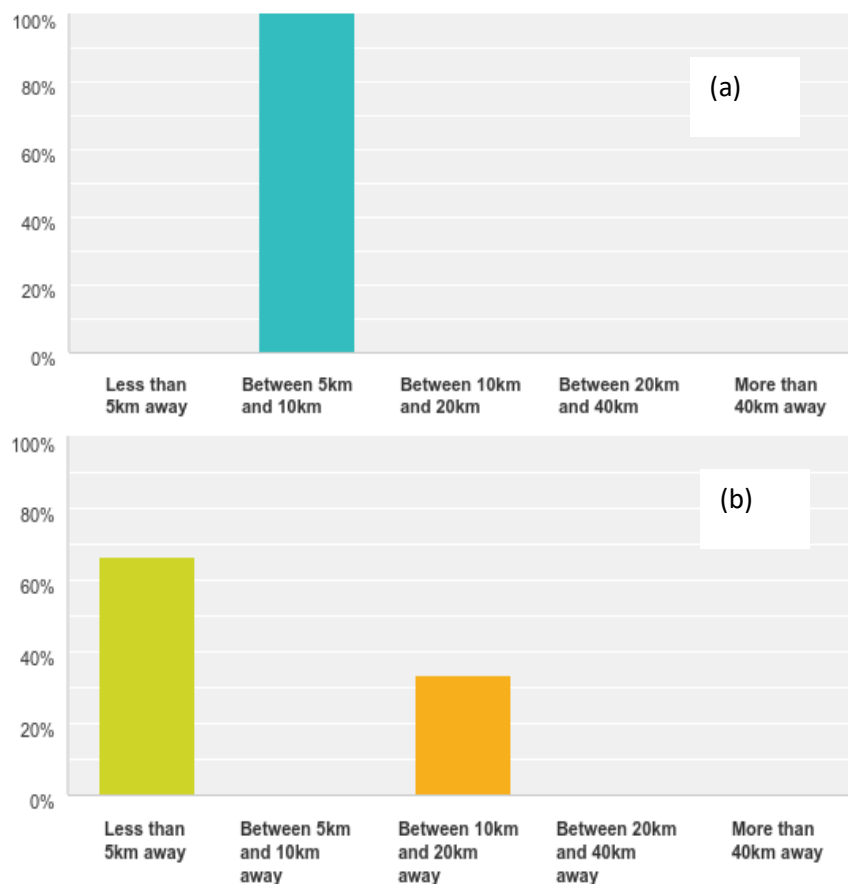

Figure E5. Distance of elderly people from informal carers in UK (a) and Belgium (b).

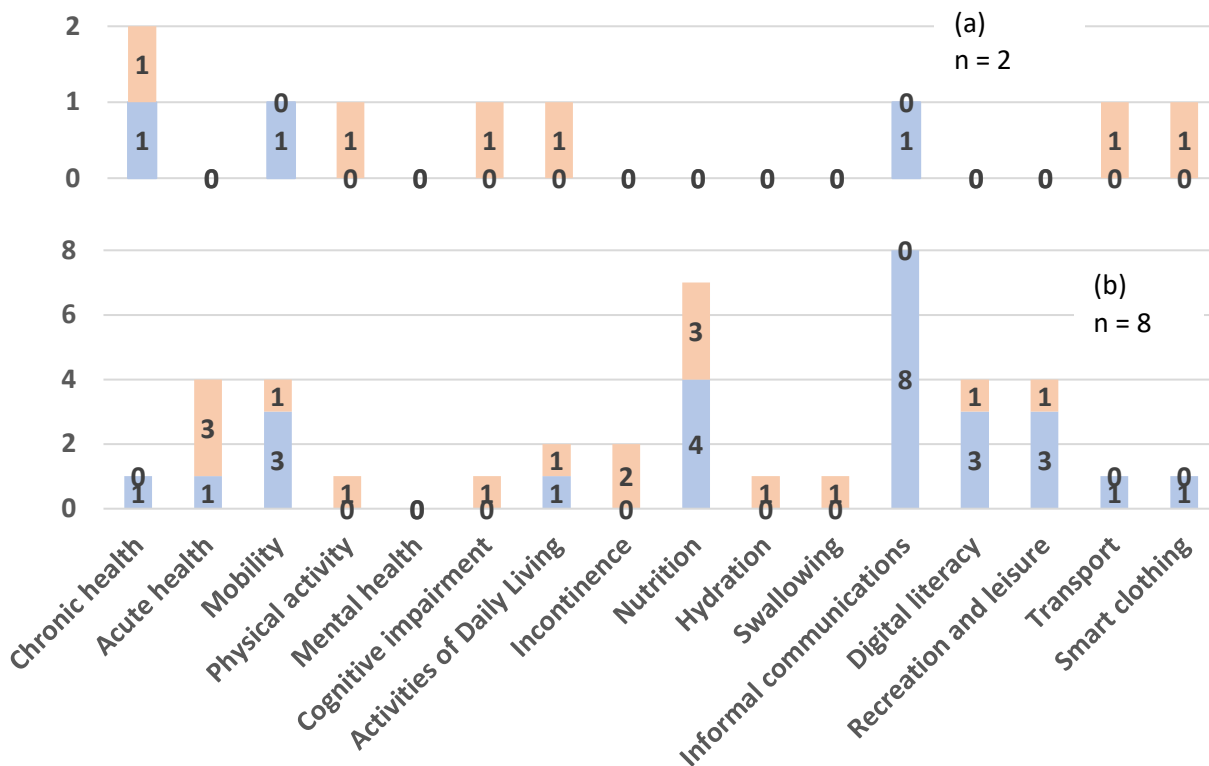

Figure E7. Innovations being used currently (blue bars) or in the future (orange bars) by the elderly in the UK (a) and Belgium (b).

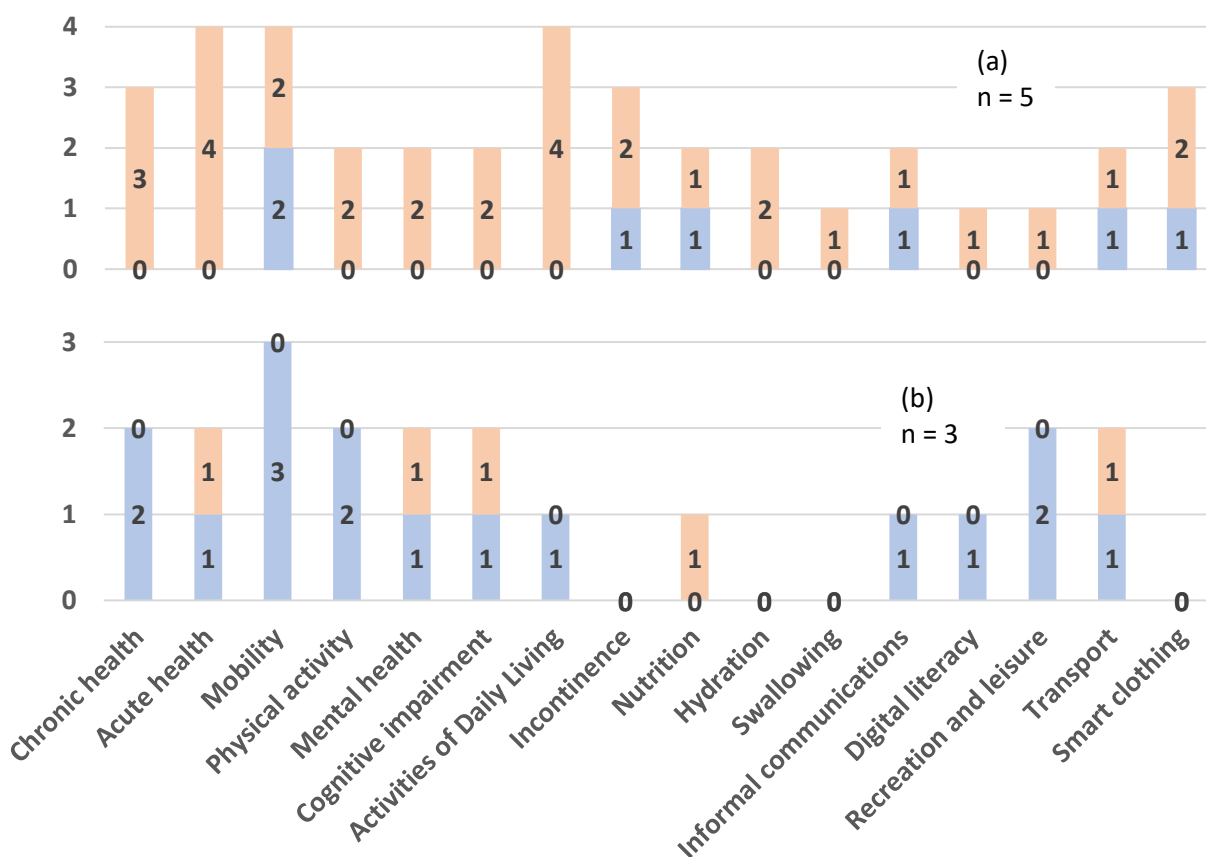

Figure E8. Innovations used currently (blue bars) or in the future (orange bars) by informal carers in the UK (a) and Belgium (b).

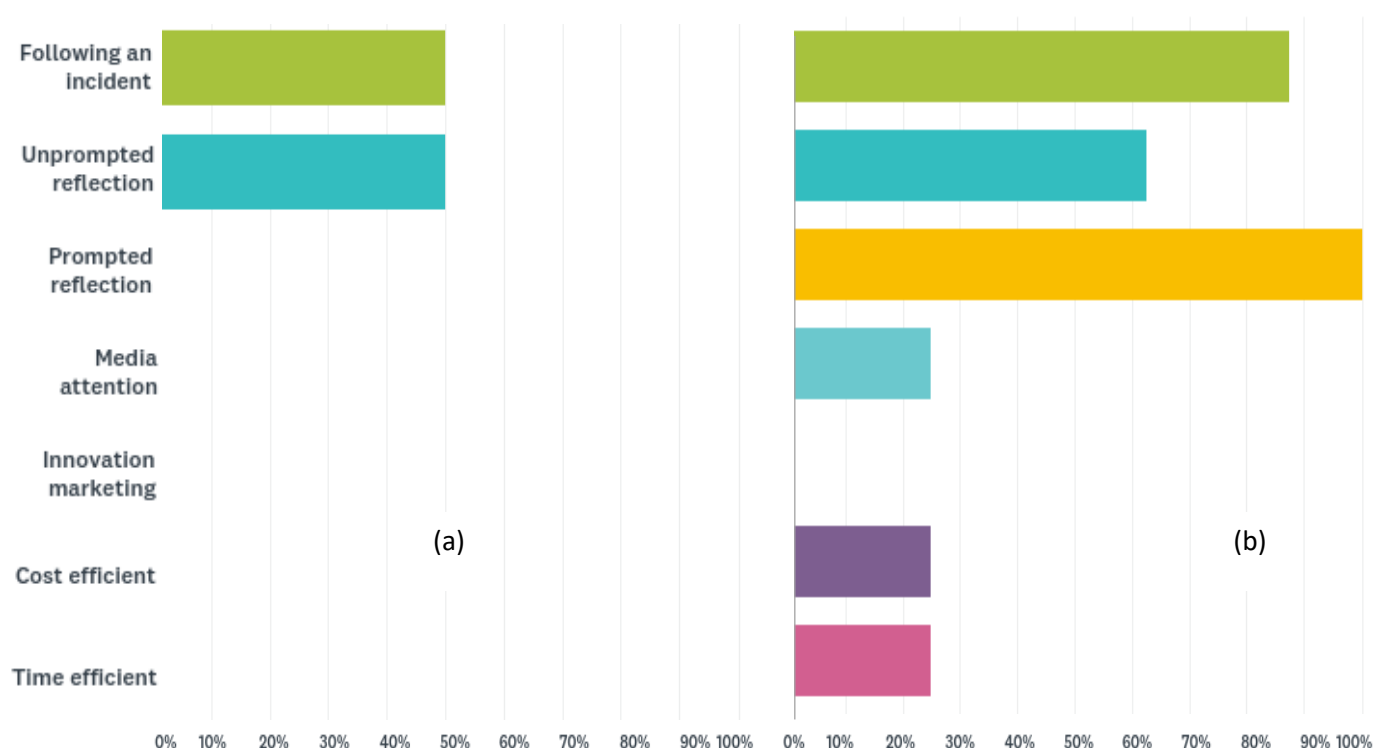

Figure E9. Ways in which elderly people identify that they have unmet needs in UK (a) and Belgium (b).

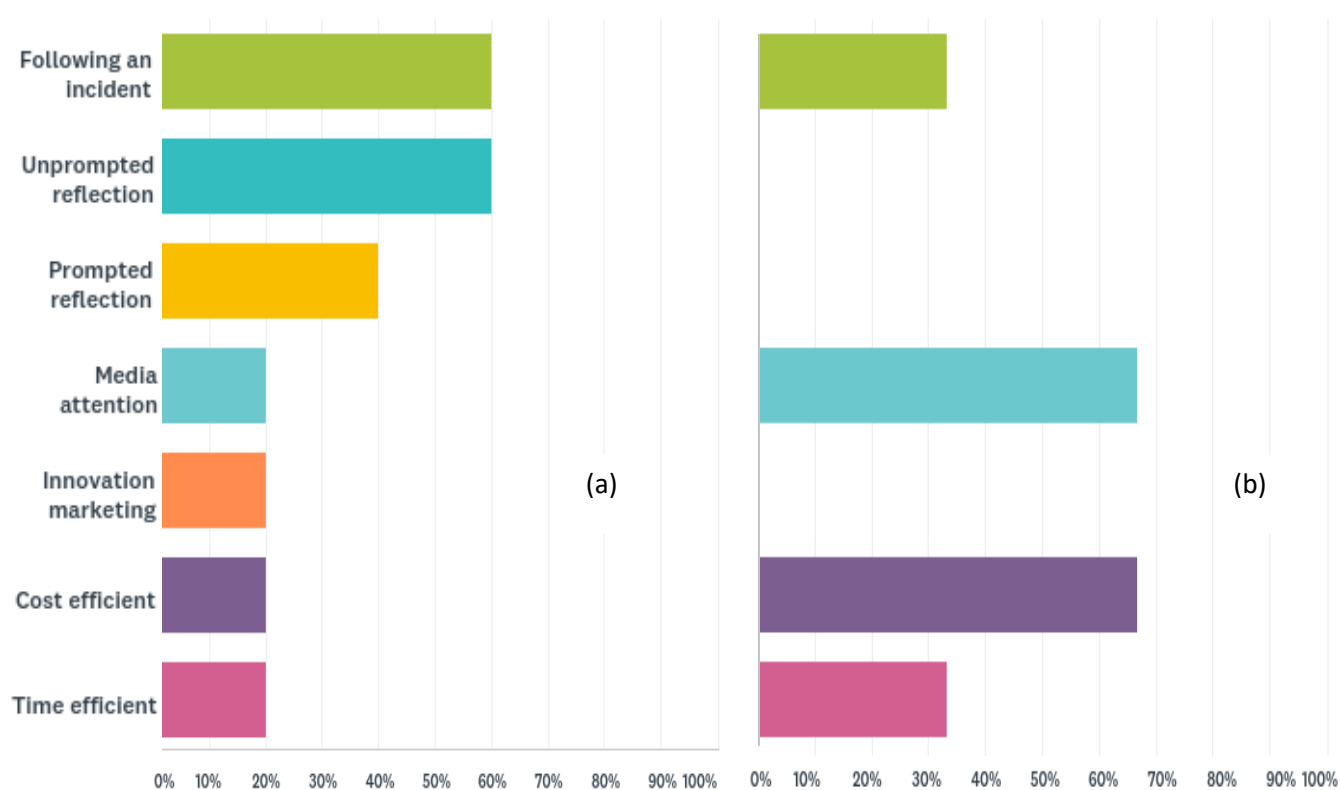

Figure E10. Ways in which informal carers identify that the elderly person they care for and/or they as carers have unmet needs in UK (a) and Belgium (b).

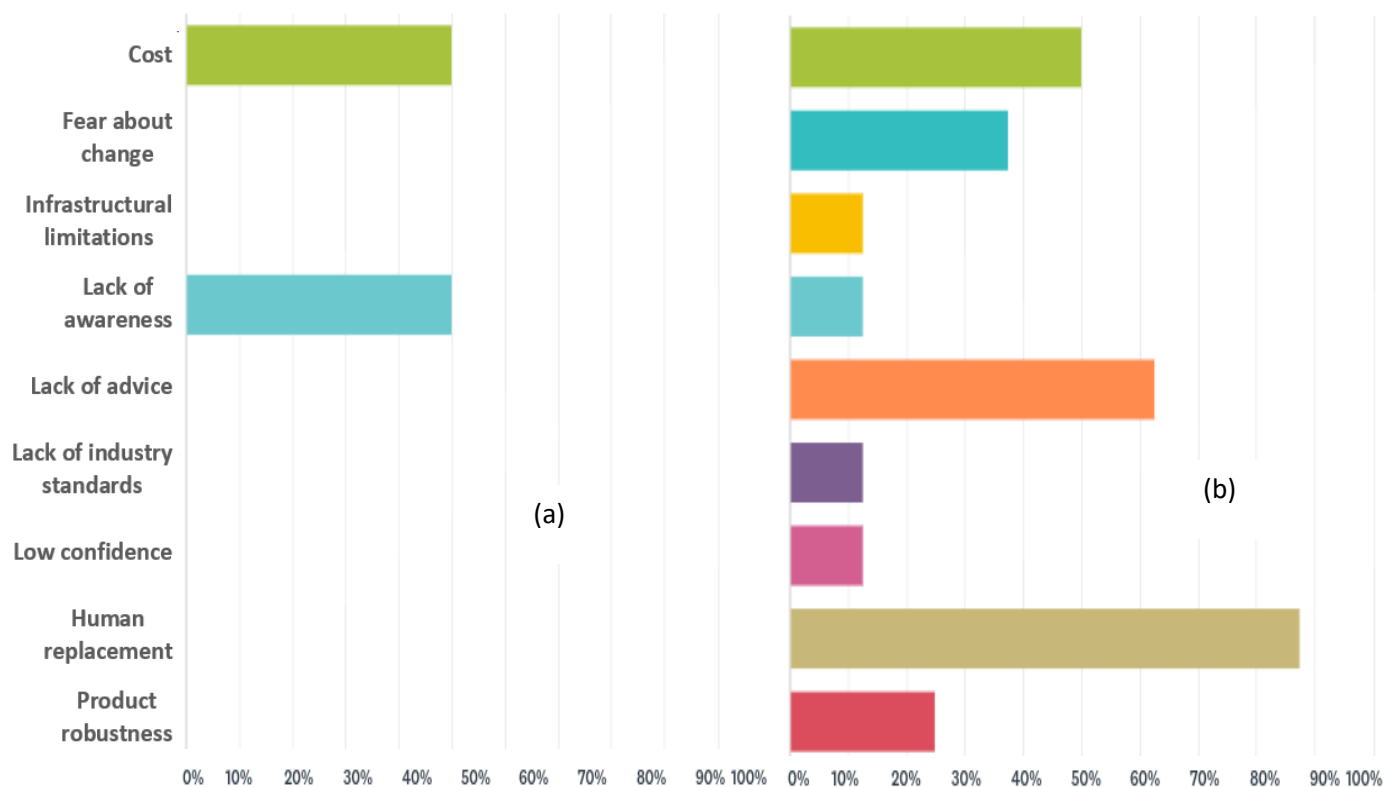

Figure E11. Barriers to innovation for the elderly people in the UK (a) and Belgium (b).

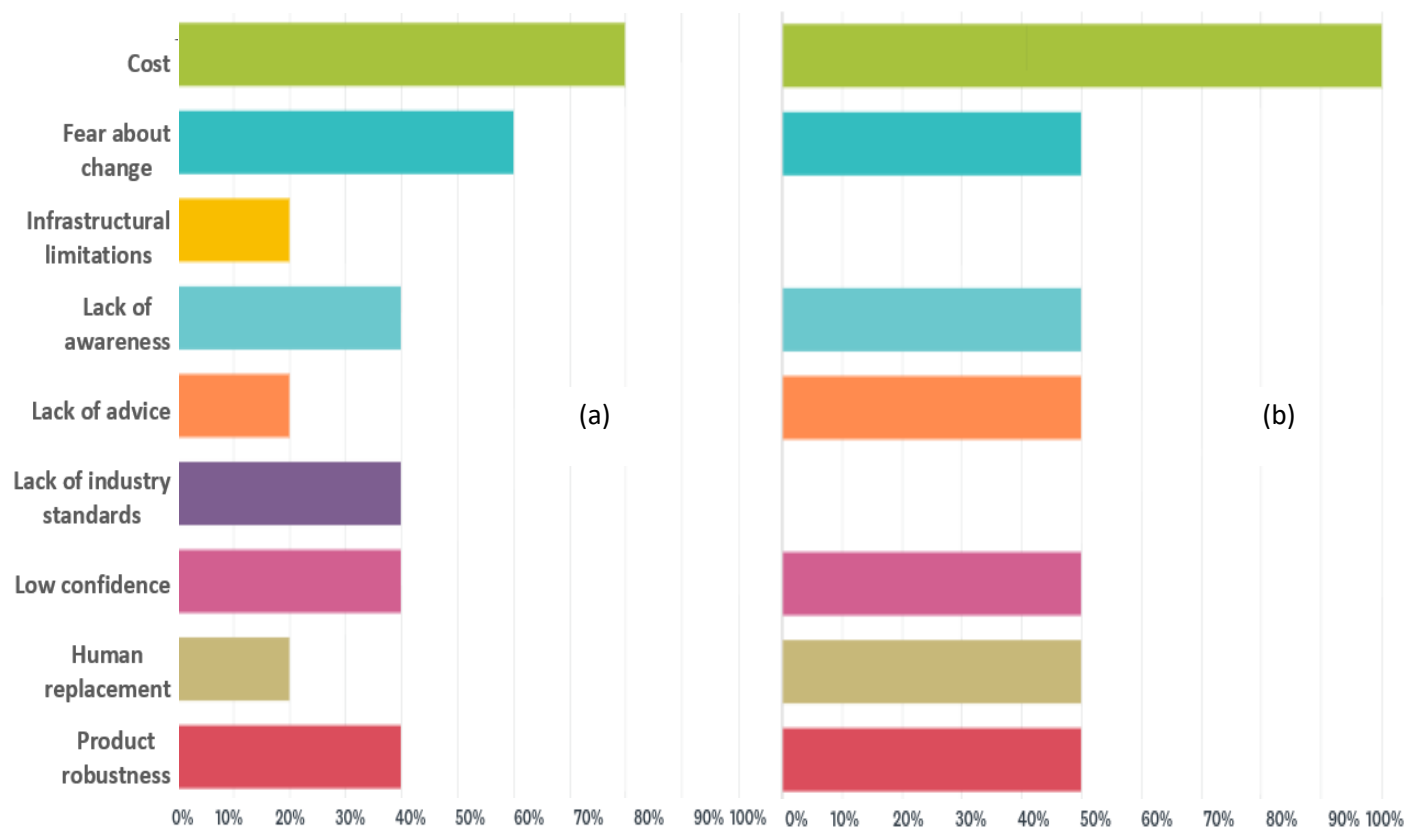

Figure E12. Barriers to innovation for informal carers in the UK (a) and Belgium (b).

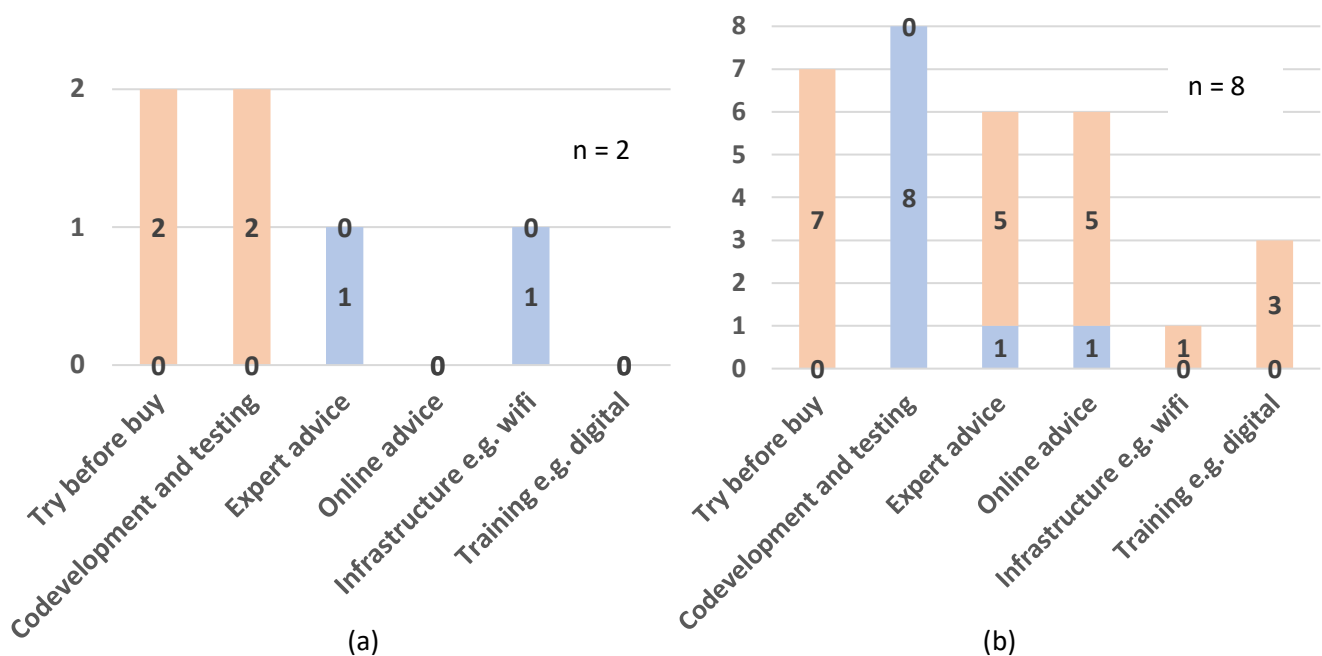

Figure E13. Strategies used by n numbers of elderly people currently (blue bars) or in the future (orange bars) to overcome barriers to innovation in the UK (a) and Belgium (b).

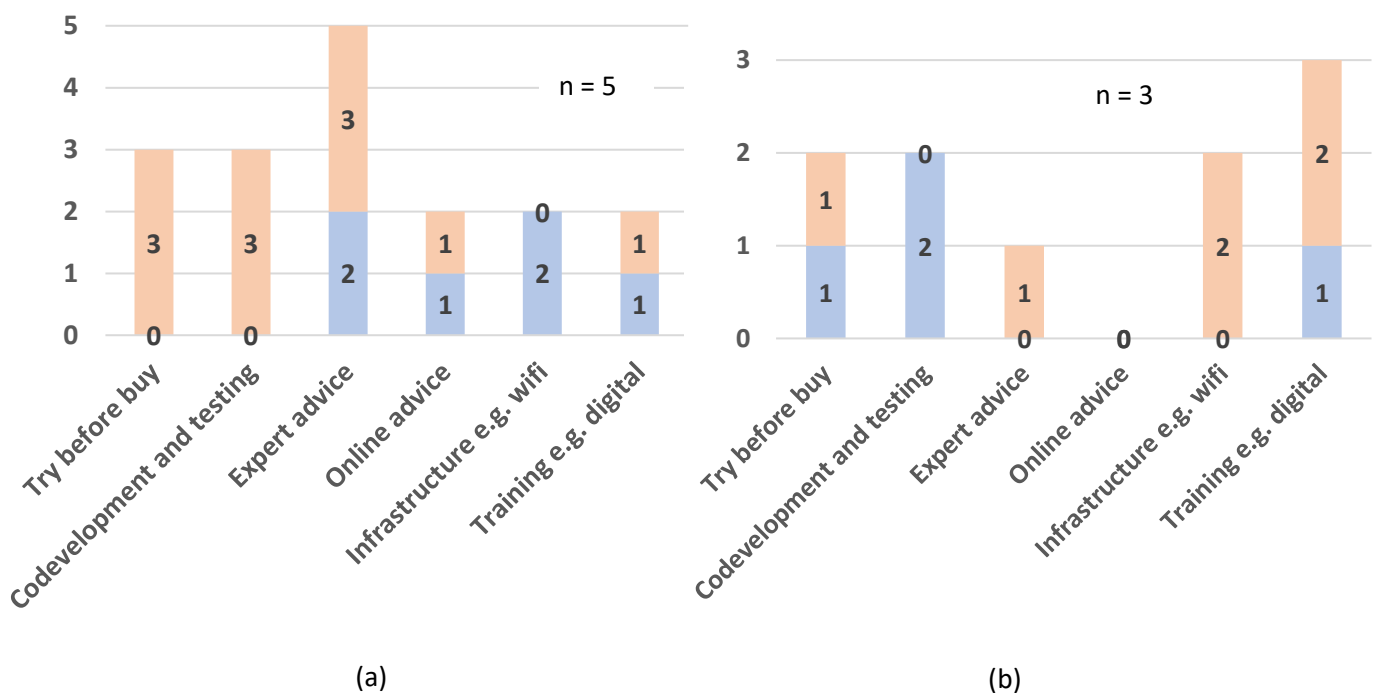

Figure E14. Strategies used by n numbers of informal carers currently (blue bars) or in the future (orange bars) to overcome barriers to innovation in the UK (a) and Belgium (b).

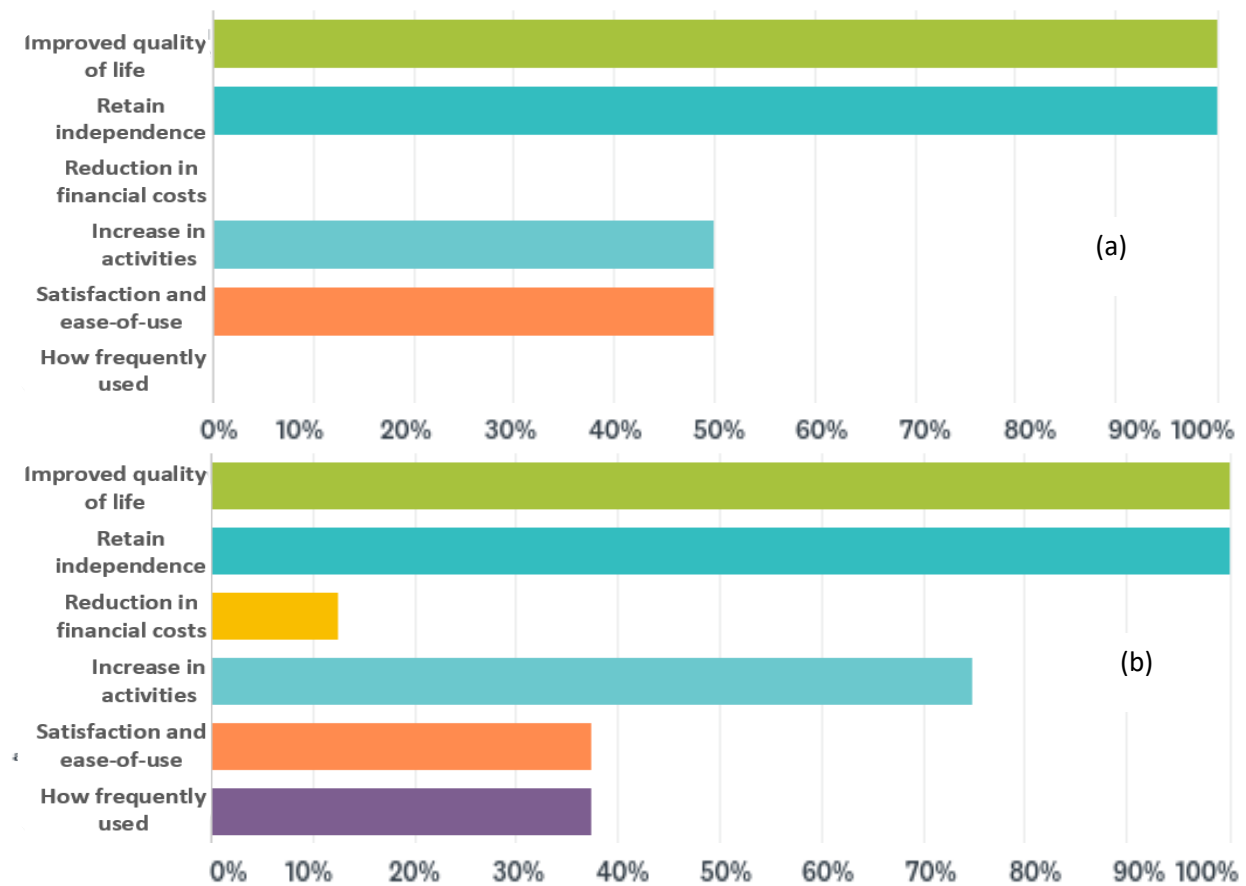

Figure E15. Ways in which elderly people evaluate the impact of an innovation in the UK (a) and Belgium (b).

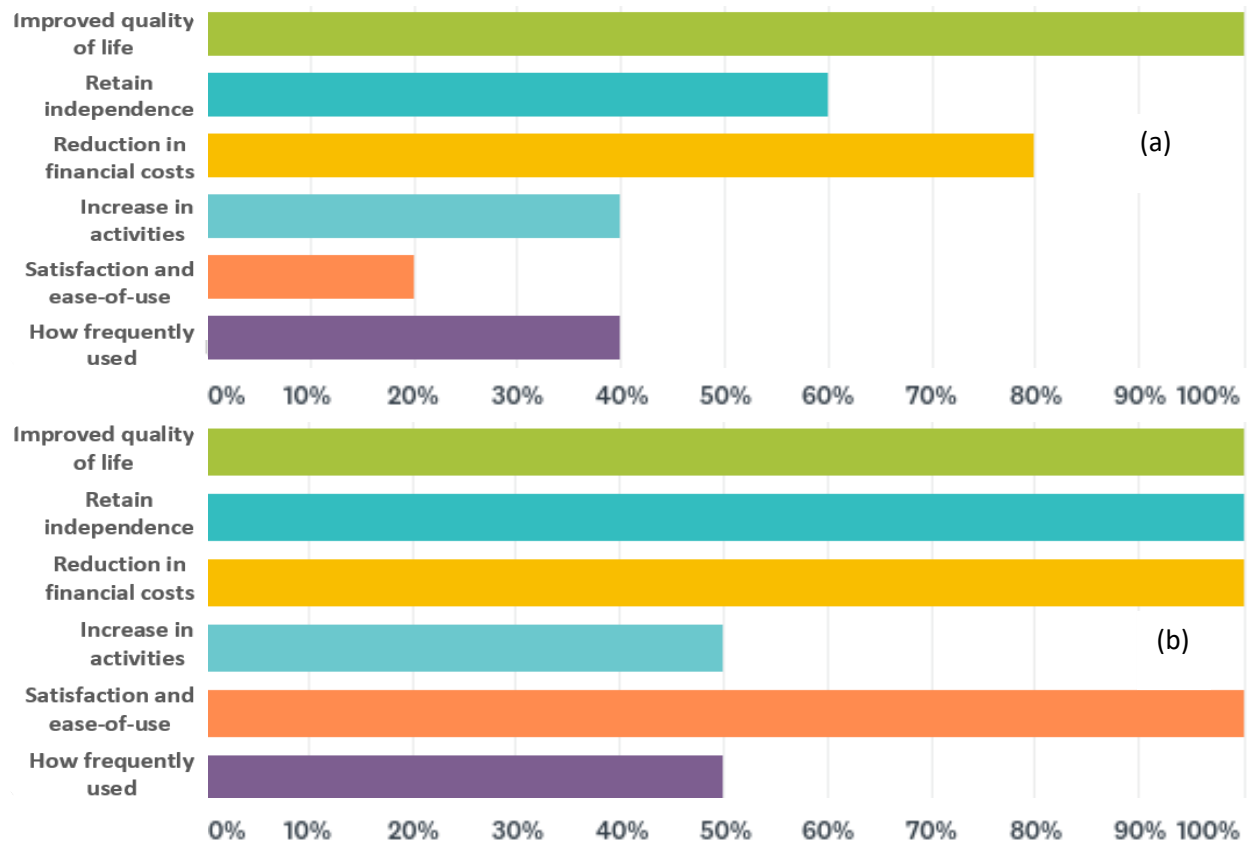

Figure E16. Ways in which informal carers evaluate the impact of an innovation in the UK (a) and Belgium (b).